

I just happened to be passing by and saw a group of teachers meeting. They were engaged in a "crucial conversation" about an upcoming math common assessment and skills to address during next week's "Wacky Wednesday". Everyone shared their thoughts & concerns about specific challenges with skills and gave suggestions on how to proceed. After several minutes of honest dialogue and intense, but productive discussion, this team of teachers were in agreement on their next steps.

Kudos to the 2nd grade team for their diligence and hard work!!
